SUPPORTING for the sake of argument, that the technical experts now in Geneva discussing the possibility of foolproof detection of nuclear test explosions were to be convinced that such means of detection, assuming that each of the eight nations represented at the conference then agreed to install on its territory the necessary mechanisms and controlling personnel; how close would we be to universal agreement to disarmament? It seems the answer is still no; for we would be to prohibition of the use of nuclear weapons.

SETTLEMENT of the controversy as to whether it is possible to detect all nuclear explosions, even a positive settlement is largely of academic interest. The fact remains that three world powers have stockpiles of nuclear arms and the rest of the world does not; that the same three powers, even if they were to destroy their stockpiles, would retain the means of manufacturing them; and that while other nations would have no possibility of developing such means — unless, of course, they could experiment with atomic hardware. And experimentation means test explosions.

TO expect a country like France, say, to agree to jettison all work on the production of atomic weapons on the basis of nothing more concrete than general agreement that it would be a good idea if nuclear arms did not exist, is to put it mildly, impractical. The presence of a French delegation at Geneva certainly cannot be taken to mean that France would favor discontinuation of tests without universal abolition of the bombs. The scientists meeting in Switzerland are dealing with the technical aspect of the question. They are not authorized to decide whether tests should be suspended, even if they agree that detection cannot be avoided. The U.S. Secretary of State, Mr. Dulles, dispelled all doubts about the French position on Monday when he denied having suggested to Gen. de Gaulle that France abandon plans to become a military atomic power, adding that this is a matter each country decides for itself. There is no reason to think that the decision of countries with the industrial and scientific potential to manufacture the bombs will differ from that taken by Britain.

WERE it not for the great advantage that the atomic bomb would provide over the have-nots, the case for ending tests would be strong enough on its own merits. Renowned scientists have given sufficient warning of the danger to mankind from radioactive fallout. But the political argument for suspension that it would be far more difficult to agree on prohibition of nuclear weapons if more countries had them — weakens it as a means of strengthening it. It is for the members of the exclusive "Nuclear Club" to reach agreement while there is none to stop them. To expect others to stand still while they grope for a solution may result in some outsize little dictator terrorizing the world.

Two British Soldiers Shot Dead in Cyprus

NICOSIA (Reuters). — Two British soldiers were shot dead by gunmen in Famagusta on Tuesday. A curfew was immediately imposed in the town.

Both soldiers were in a Cyprus shop on Hermes Street — Famagusta's notorious "murder mile" — when they were fired at from behind with automatic weapons. Both soldiers fell near the entrance of the shop and died almost immediately.

In London, Prime Minister Macmillan said in the Commons he was in further communication with the Greek and Turkish Premiers and that the British Government's plan for Cyprus must proceed.

POLAND EXPELS ISRAELI LEGATION SECRETARY

WARSAW (Reuters). — The First Secretary at the Israeli Legation here, Mr. Ya'acov Bar-More, who had already notified the Polish Government that he had been posted home after serving four years in Warsaw, was on Tuesday suddenly ordered by the Poles to leave the country within 48 hours.

A Foreign Ministry communiqué issued tonight by the official Polish news agency PAP accused Mr. Bar-More of "trying systematically to recruit Polish citizens for activities contrary to the interests of the Polish nation."

Mr. Bar-More said Tuesday night, "I have no idea at all what is behind this decision. I had been booked to leave Poland for Israel by air with my wife and three children on July 15. The Foreign Ministry knew I was planning to leave."

The Polish announcement of Mr. Bar-More's expulsion was received with great surprise by official circles in Jerusalem Tuesday night. The Foreign Ministry rejected the Polish accusations.

Mr. Bar-More had been given a 48-hour ultimatum to leave Poland by the Polish Government, having completed his tour of duty as First Secretary, a post he had taken up four years ago. He was succeeded by Mr. Katriel Katz, gave a farewell party for him, attended by leading Polish Government officials.

Khrushchev Assured Of German Orthodoxy

BERLIN (Reuters). — The Soviet Prime Minister, Mr. Nikita Khrushchev, was assured by his East German counterpart, Dr. Walter Ulbricht, here on Tuesday that local attempts at revisionism had been nipped in the bud.

Dr. Ulbricht, First Secretary of the Socialist Unity (Communist) Party, said this in a speech of welcome when Mr. Khrushchev arrived at the head of a Soviet delegation for the East German party congress opening Thursday.

"Only nitwits can still speculate about a rift among the Socialist states," he said.

BONN DEFENCE CHIEF CONFERRING IN PARIS (Reuters). — The West German Defence Minister, Mr. Franz Josef Strauss, arrived Tuesday on a two-day visit for talks with French defence chiefs. He is expected to see Premier de Gaulle.

Unogil Spots Syrian Soldiers in Lebanon

BEIRUT (Reuters). — The Lebanese Government said Tuesday that U.N. observers had supplied proof that uniformed Syrian soldiers had penetrated deep into Lebanese territory.

Dr. Albert Moukheiber, Minister of Information who maintains liaison with the U.N. observers, said the latter had supplied the Lebanese Government with a map showing the exact place where a company of uniformed Syrian soldiers had been seen last Thursday.

Dr. Moukheiber told a press conference that a patrol of this map showed that the Syrians were two-and-a-half miles inside Lebanese territory, at a point where the frontier was not under dispute.

He told a questioner that the Lebanese Government intended to protest to the United Arab Republic about this.

Question of Integrity

In a prepared statement the Minister said the first report of the U.N. observers "brings up the question of the neutrality and integrity of the observers." But he added, "The regions forbidden to the observers by the insurgents were precisely those through which the rebellion had been supplied with arms and men."

Terrified insurgents and customers rushed into the street early Tuesday as a four-storey Beirut department store went up in flames, sparked by burning debris from a bomb explosion in a soft drink delivery lorry. Thirty persons were injured.

The explosion followed a night of intermittent shooting during which rebels were believed to have staged a commando raid from their barricaded Moslem sector of the city. The blast which caused damage estimated at $250,000 came amid mounting pressure from moderates on both sides for an end to the bloodshed, which has gone on for two months.

Reshuffle in Defence Ministry

A reshuffle of eight of the senior officials of the Ministry of Defence, including the appointment of two Assistant Directors-General in place of one Deputy Tuesday.

All of the officials involved are veterans of the Hagana of the pre-state days and have been working for defence for more than two decades. One, Aryeh Sarig (Syrian), who has been appointed Director of Administration and Organization, was the central figure of the notorious Jerusalem arms trial known as the Syrkin-Rachlin case in 1945 and was sentenced by the British military court to 10 years in gaol.

The two new Assistant Directors-General are Aluf Zvi Ayalon and Aluf-Mishne Kashi; the latter will be in charge of economic matters. They are replacing Mr. S. Selinger, who has been appointed to head the Ministry's purchasing mission to the U.S.

Aluf Ayalon was appointed Deputy Chief of Staff in 1947 and was responsible for the organizational structure of the General Staff of the Israel Defence Forces. Since 1957 he has been serving as the Director of the Building and Property Department of the Ministry of Defence.

Aluf-Mishne Kashi was appointed economic adviser to the General Staff, in 1953, and Director of the Ministry of Defence Finance Department in 1956.

Mr. Meir Mardor has been appointed to head the Authority for the Development of Means of Warfare, leaving his former task as Director of Development Projects. In 1953 he was Commander of the Special Operations company in the Haifa District, and in 1943 was placed in charge of the "illegal" immigration from Mediterranean countries. Both in Hagana days and during the War of Independence Mr. Mardor was active in acquiring weapons.

It said five crew parachuted to safety and the remainder of the plane was destroyed by fire. A statement issued when they arrived here following their rescue at Pagan border on Monday, said the crew had reported that with five parachutes in the air and aircraft in flames, MIGs fired again at the plane while it was on its final approach for the forced landing.

They are expected to discuss world affairs, including the Lebanon and Cyprus, for about two days. A communiqué will be issued at the end of the talks.

The Greek Foreign Minister, Mr. Kostas Averoff, arrived at Brioni Tuesday, said, "Greece is a country which is firmly on the side of the West, but this does not prevent her from enjoying cordial relations with countries belonging to no bloc."

U.S. Selling Britain All A-Sub Parts

LONDON (Reuters). — The U.S. will sell Britain one complete submarine nuclear propulsion plant, and spare parts, under the new Anglo-American agreement for cooperation on the uses of atomic energy for mutual defence purposes. The agreement was published by the government Tuesday as a White Paper.

Under the agreement, the U.S. government will sell Britain agreed amounts of Uranium-235 contained in the isotopes needed for use in the submarine nuclear propulsion plant. There will be no transfer of atomic weapons by either party under the agreement.

The two nations will exchange classified information which they both consider necessary for:

- 1—developing defence plans;
- 2—training in the use of atomic weapons for defence against them; and
- 3—evaluating the capabilities of potential enemies in the employment of atomic weapons and other military applications of atomic energy;
- 4—developing "delivery systems" for the atomic weapons; 5—Research and development and design of military reactors.

First French A-Test Due 'Very Soon'

PARIS (Reuters). — France will begin industrial production of plutonium — key element of the atomic bomb — within a month, sources close to the Atomic Energy Commission said Tuesday.

The plutonium extraction plant at Marcoule has completed preliminary trials, and by the end of the year will be producing at the rate of 100 kg. of plutonium a year — enough for 10 bombs.

France is understood to have completed the technical details for a first atomic test, which will be made in a very short time.

Herut, General Zionists Back Orthodox; Urge Government to Rescind Identity Ruling

Jerusalem Post Knesset Reporter

The National Religious Party was supported in the Knesset on Tuesday by Herut and the General Zionists in its demand that the Government rescind its decision on the definition of a "Jew" for identity card purposes.

The debate on the Prime Minister's Knesset statement last week about the resignation of the two National Religious Ministers was opened Tuesday by Mr. Moshe Haim Shapiro, former Minister for Religious Affairs and Social Welfare, who stated: "We can retreat from Sinai, but not from the Law of Sinai."

Dr. Yosef Burg, ex-Minister of Posts, asserted that even if every Jew in Israel supported the Government's decision, the view of Diaspora Jewry must be taken into account.

The Minister of Interior, Mr. Israel Bar-Yehuda, took the view that it was for the Government, and not the Rabbinate, to decide who was a Jew by nationality, Mr. Bar-Yehuda said.

Mr. Shapiro said that for the past 30 years his party had been guided by the decision of the late Chief Rabbi Kook that endeavored to bridge the chasm dividing Jew from Jew was a holy mission. Nor had the party's efforts in this direction been in vain.

Only a Government which had severed itself from the Jewish people could have adopted the rule it did on registration procedure, he asserted.

Christian Wives

A good many Christian wives who had settled in Israel with their Jewish husbands had accepted the Jewish faith, Mr. Shapiro said. But there were isolated cases where all feeling for Israel and the Jewish people was absent. There was no reason to change the rules on their account.

He attributed the Government's decision to a feeling of inferiority towards the Gentiles. "You are destroying the dividing wall between Jew and Gentile," he declared, "erecting a dividing wall between Jew and Jew."

Mr. Shapiro declared. The Government's decision would encourage assimilation throughout the Diaspora by eliminating the sole remaining deterrent to intermarriage: the knowledge that the children would not be Jews.

He advised the Prime Minister not to be intimidated by the threats of Abdu'l-Havoda and Mamad that they would quit the Government over this issue, any more than he had been by similar threats in the past. "We can retreat from Sinai, but not from the Law of Sinai," he declared.

His Verdict Declaration

Dr. Yosef Burg, who followed Mr. Shapiro, said the meaning of the Government's decision was that a mere verbal declaration of conversion would not be enough. It meant destroying the historic connection between Jew and Jew.

Judaism was not a missionary religion and it had paid dearly for the few occasions in its history when it had forcibly converted Gentiles within its borders. But no one should be recorded as a Jew who was not a Jew by religion. "We accept with love anyone who wishes to become a proselyte, but we are against forgery and distortion," he said.

The Cabinet met in the morning to hear a report on the negotiations with representatives of the National Religious Party.

There is believed to be some difference of opinion within Mapai circles as to whether the formula accepted by the Government for the registration of newcomers is completely desirable. The party includes many observant Jews, who would like to see it modified, and who consider that the agreement of the Rabbinate that the Orthodox living in Israel may be converted without their Christian mothers undergoing conversion would be a serious practical problem involved.

The Progressives are eager to see the crisis ended and Mr. Pinhas Rosen, the Minister of Justice, has proposed new categories for the identity card which might avoid the present deadlock. According to this suggestion "nationality and religion" would become one concept, to be completed by Jews in accordance with halachic requirements, and a new category introduced, "adopted nationality" (leumit me'am-let), in which a person may describe himself as a Jew in accordance with his own wishes. He said that the suggestion was being studied by both sides.

Both Mapam and Abdu'l-Havoda would like a very firm stand to be taken on the present formula.

times when the rabbis had rightly put difficulties in the path of would-be proselytes. But things were different today. Many non-Jews had risked their lives to save Jews from Hitlerism. If they wished to become Jews they should be encouraged.

Mr. Pinhas Rosen, (General Zionists), like Mr. Begin called on the Government to rescind its decision on the registration of Jews. He could not understand how the Government, presumably for reasons of good administrative order, had taken a decision that was bound to result in this serious and needless debate. For ten years there had been a general agreement not to force the religious issue.

He was all for good order — not that he saw that there was such serious disorder before Mr. Bar-Yehuda issued his new directives in March — but it was worth causing this rift for the sake of good order?

Meaning of Zion

It was impossible to conceive of the return to Zion without accepting the meaning of Zion, Mr. Bernstein said. One could not talk of the historical continuity of the Jewish people in Eretz Yisrael while at the same time denying everything which gave the Jews the right to be in Israel today.

Mr. Bernstein drew laughter from all parts of the House when he said that the halachic rule that the religion of the mother determines that of the child was a very pragmatic one: the child's ethnic origin is definite as to the mother, but doubtful as to the father.

Clear Win for Adenauer Party in State Poll

BOON (Reuters). — Dr. Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democratic Party polled an absolute majority of 51 votes in the North Rhine Westphalian state election.

Official provisional results give the Christian Democrats 104 of the 200 seats in the State Parliament, as against 83 for the Social Democrats and 15 for the Free Democrats.

Western Gov'ts Hit U.S. Shipping Policy

THE HAGUE. — The governments of the Netherlands, Britain, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Belgium, West Germany, and other countries have lodged a protest against U.S. shipping policy, it was learned.

The protest, it was stated, is directed against measures favoring the American flag at least 50 per cent of the shipment of goods under the mutual security program and 100 per cent on the basis of tonnage and guarantee of U.S. Government bodies, such as the Export-Import Bank.

Quick Decision Urged in Union Bank Dispute

HAIFA. — The local branch of the Clerks Union on Tuesday sent a telegram to the Ministry of Labour demanding an immediate decision on the mediation on its dispute with the Union Bank here. The union threatened that if the conclusions are not published by Sunday it would call a strike at the bank again on Monday.

The union ordered a strike last month over the bank's refusal to sign a labour contract, but none of the employees obeyed the call. The strike was called off when the union agreed to labour Ministry mediation.

VISITORS' GALLERY: Thomas Balogh Regional Economic Planning

Dr. Thomas Balogh, lecturer in Economics at Balliol College, Oxford, is just completing a two-week visit during which he has been preparing a report on the economic development of the Mediterranean Region, which is being carried out by the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization.

It is more and more the practice of international agencies to tackle economic problems on a regional basis rather than by individual countries. Dr. Balogh plans to draw on each other's experience and to learn from the other country's failures and achievements.

The Mediterranean Region Development Project was originally intended to be a study of forestry and arid lands, but it expanded into a study of the economic conditions in the countries of the area. The reason for expanding the scope of the project, says Dr. Balogh, is that you cannot solve problems of agricultural development, for which this project is mainly intended, without a clear picture of the situation of all other branches of the economy.

Dr. Balogh's quick grasp of the finest details of a situation or problem, he is known as one of the most brilliant socialist economists in Britain. Author of the "Dollar Crisis," which was an important and official treatise that appeared during Britain's post-war economic crisis, Dr. Balogh is now known as an informal adviser to the British Government on economic affairs. In more recent years he has been known as an informal adviser to the British Government on economic affairs.

Russian Scientists Occupied with Death

NEW YORK (Reuters). — Dr. Hans Henley, of the Columbia University Medical Center in New York, said in a press interview on Tuesday that Soviet scientists were exploring in an extraordinary comprehensive way "the problem of death and revival."

Dr. Henley returned recently from a visit to Moscow. He said the Russians were carrying on a thorough and highly systematic research into the complex bodily changes that occur at death and were seeking means for combating them.

Dr. Henley said, "The Soviet scientists are trying to find out what happens to the cells, the nerves and the reflexes at death when chemical and physical changes occur. They are trying to find out the limits of revival."

She added that she watched in Russia an experiment in which a dog drained of blood and kept for five days in a refrigerator, was revived after being dead for five days. The dog was revived after being dead for five days.

Soviet Expeditions To Go to Africa

WASHINGTON (Reuters). — Soviet scholars are embarking on a major programme of African research that "surpasses by far all previous Soviet efforts in the African field," said a statement published here by the African-American Institute.

The writer said the Soviet Academy of Sciences is organizing a series of field expeditions to the African continent by specialists in geography, philology, ethnography, and history.

"If these are carried out, they will mark an entirely new development in the Soviet approach to the study of Africa," the article said. "Up to now, Soviet scholars have been permitted to make field trips abroad," the article said.

Concentrating heavily on areas of scientific and cultural interest, the expeditions in the African scene, the programme is designed to fill wide gaps in Soviet knowledge and offer moral support to Africa's people.

Nagy Case Breach Of Int'l Law

THE HAGUE (Reuters). — The International Commission of Jurists said on Tuesday that the arrest of Mr. Imre Nagy and other leaders of the 1956 Hungarian uprising was a breach of international law as well as of Hungarian internal law. The Commission, a non-governmental organization with United Nations consultative status, made the comment in a special report on jurisdiction in Hungary.

The report said, "There was a clear breach of an understanding on the part of the Hungarian government to the Yugoslav government in respect of the safe-conduct provided to Imre Nagy and his associates in the Yugoslav Embassy."

COLD. — Queen Elizabeth has been taken to hospital with a temperature and acute sinusitis. She was taken to Buckingham Palace Tuesday. Her indisposition follows a strenuous week's programme in Scotland.

Evenschapper on Goldfine Sacked by U.S. Gov't

WASHINGTON (Reuters). — A congressional sub-committee probing the relationship between the millionaire industrialist, Mr. Bernard Goldfine, and Mr. Sherman Adams, President Eisenhower's chief assistant, on Monday night accused their chief investigator for using a microphone to eavesdrop on Mr. Goldfine's associates.

The investigator, Mr. Barton Blackette, was discovered using the microphone in a hotel room adjoining the office of Mr. Goldfine's staff. The committee had met behind closed doors to discuss the matter, and also the robbery of another room occupied by Mr. Goldfine's staff, in which many records, correspondence, and other documents were reported to have been stolen.

The committee called on the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Justice Department, and the police to look into the "serious" developments.

Technician Professor To Construct Berlin Bldg.

HAIFA. — Prof. Alexander Klein, of Haifa, has been invited to Berlin to supervise the construction of an 18-story apartment building, which he designed at the request of the Berlin Municipality. He was among a selected group of internationally known architects chosen to submit plans for the buildings to be included in the reconstruction project for one of Berlin's quarters. The acceptance of Prof. Klein's plans was put on display at the International Building Exhibition of Interbau 58, which is being held in Berlin.

Prof. Klein's plans were acclaimed by architecture and building critics for their "classic" quality of interchangeable internal arrangements, and hailed as being practical and inexpensive to build. The plans show a plan which displays a scientific approach to architecture.

Prof. Klein was the recipient of a special scroll of gratitude presented to him by the Berlin Municipality in recognition of his outstanding contribution. He was among a selected group of internationally known architects chosen to submit plans for the buildings to be included in the reconstruction project for one of Berlin's quarters.

Action Sought Against Unsafe Buildings

A draft law aiming to prevent the sudden collapsing of buildings and to anticipate such accidents, has been drawn up by the Ministry of Interior. It was announced by the Ministry this week. The bill would make landlords responsible for ensuring the soundness of buildings.

Local authorities would have to carry out surveys and classify buildings according to their stability. The bill would also oblige the landlord to carry out repairs and in cases where this is not done, the local authority is to do so and collect the cost from the landlord on completion of the repairs.

The housing of tenants vacated from dangerous buildings is also taken care of in the proposed law. It suggests the creation of a national fund to finance activities resulting from the law.
